1. The Polish Air Force Technical School for Non-Commissioned Officers (ground personnel) (TSL) was transferred from Boernerowo to Zamosc in the summer of 1950. The duration of the course is two years. The school consists of two battalions of three companies each.
2. The specialized departments have mechanical (engines), wireless transmitters, radio-electric, and aircraft instruments. The number of students in these departments varies, but the largest number is sent to the Mechanical Department.
3. The students are taught on the following type of aircraft: YAK-9, IL (number unknown), Kukuruzniki biplanes, twin-engined bombers (type unknown), and one Douglas-type aircraft.¹
4. The political commandant of the school is Major Staniesskin, a Soviet officer.²
5. Students are eligible for admission on completion of seven classes of an elementary school, but the most readily accepted candidates are those from a technical school. The school also accepts some of those who have not been admitted to the Polish Air Force Officers' School at Deblin.
